The town of Campbell is out to clean up "The Island," long notorious for its road houses. The town today set its face against the disorderly saloons, and made the first leg of a course designed to lift from French Island and other parts of the township the unsavory reputation that has rested over it.

Two resort keepers on French Island were refused liquor licenses; two applications were put over until Monday for the hearing of testimony against the applicants to be produced by District Attorney Otto Schlabach; and every saloon keeper in the township was called upon the carpet and given a "wiggling" and definite instructions as to the manner in which his place must be conducted. Each was given to understand that a new order of things exists—that strict obedience to law is the only condition under which his place will be allowed in continued operation.

The liquor licenses refused were applied for by James Sokolik and John Elsen. Sokolik was refused a license last year.

District Attorney Schlabach is working with the town board. He was present at the meeting today and presented objections to the applications of Sokolik and Elsen. He backed his objections with the sworn deposition of a detective he employed recently to investigate conditions "on the road."

The testimony offered was not made public, but is said to contain sensational charges concerning several other Campbell saloon keepers, testimony which will be presented at next Monday's meeting.

Liquor licenses to be considered at the adjourned meeting of the board Monday are those applied for by J. P. Cushman, another French Island resort man, and William Chamberlain, proprietor of the South Salem road resort formerly owned by Jack Bennett.

The meeting of the town board was held this morning at Campbell town hall on the North Salem road.

Twenty-eight Saloonkeepers Have Been Summoned to Appear Before the Council Tonight

Three saloon-keepers will be refused licenses this evening, when the city council gets together in the annual session for the dispensation of liquor permits. Twenty-eight have been notified to appear before the aldermen.

A session with fireworks is expected for the special license committee is said to have discovered several violations of law among applicants for licenses which are to be brought to their attention with emphasis.

About a dozen of the twenty-eight who are called on the carpet are new men, upon whom will be impressed the necessity for conducting their saloons in accordance with the city regulations.

FOR A SANE FOURTH THE MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

Believing a large majority of our citizens desire the observance of the Fourth of July in a manner in harmony with the general movement to bring about a "sane Fourth," and believing also that the safety of our citizens should be the first consideration, and that there is an element of danger in the injudicious use of firecrackers and explosives, therefore, in compliance with a request made by several organizations and individuals for a statement from their Mayor, I sincerely urge all our citizen to take note that the dealers in firecrackers have been requested to refrain from the sale of same until July 1st, and that it is highly desirable that each and every person bear in mind the desirability of exercising great caution in the use of dangerous explosives.

To all of which I most respectfully subscribe,
A. A. BENTLEY, Mayor.

URGES SAFETY AND SANITY

City's Executive Appeals for Caution in Traditional

pendence Day

A "sane Fourth" with the traditional noisy celebration confined to the holiday itself, is the ideal held out to La Crosse today by its mayor, in his Independence day proclamation. He places a ban on the sale of fireworks until the morning of July 1.

"Safety First" might be considered the mayor's text. He points out the danger of firecrackers, and makes an appeal for caution. The chief point made in the proclamation is that with the sale restricted until Thursday, July 1, the small boy who is the chief sufferer and offender on the Fourth of July will have small chance to get himself into trouble without the knowledge of his parents.

Line and Is Killed Instantly by "Juice"

PRESTON, Minn., June 28.—(Special.)—Albert F. Miller, well known farmer residing five miles southeast of here, was electrocuted Saturday night when he tried to straighten out a high current electric wire which had become entangled by a heavy wind storm.

Mr. Miller's home is illuminated by electric current furnished by a line of the Root River Powder company, which was recently installed.

A high wind storm of Saturday afternoon blew down a portion of the line near the Miller home and Mr. Miller tried to repair it. He was instantly killed when he took hold of one of the wires.

CONCESSIONS OPPOSED

AMSTERDAM, June 28.—The German navy league has begun an eleventh hour press campaign to organize sentiment against any concessions to America in the German reply, according to advices received here this afternoon.

ANNIVERSARY OF MURDER OF ARCHDUKE FERDINAND OBSERVED BY AUSTRIANS

VIENNA, June 28.—The first anniversary of the assassination at Sarajevo of the Austrian archduke, Ferdinand, the crime that touched off the world's greatest war, was observed throughout Austria and Germany today.

The Austrian newspapers devoted columns to eulogies of the late heir to the Austrian throne. They recalled his executive work in the preparation of the Austrian war machine, declaring that the recent victory at Lemberg was especially fitting at this time because it honored the memory of the archduke.

Through a great silent throng, the aged emperor, Franz Joseph, drove today to the cathedral where special services were held. The crowd, numbering more than 100,000, stood uncovered as the emperor passed and then chanted softly the Austrian national hymn.

Following instructions from the emperor, the day was everywhere observed at the battle front. Commanding officers lectured their troops upon the "murder of Sarajevo" and called upon them to avenge the death of Ferdinand.

CONTRACTORS AND DEALERS CLOSE UP TO FIGHT STRIKERS

Quarter Million Workmen
Threatened with Unemployment When Dealers
Refuse to Sell

TO FIGHT WAGE INCREASE

Estimated Loss to Workmen of $600,000 Daily
Augmented by Loss to the Employers

CHICAGO, June 28.—One of the greatest labor struggles of recent years was on in deadliest earnest this afternoon. It will be fought out with dollars, not bullets.

Carpenter contractors, lumber dealers whose capital runs into enormous figures, and building material manufacturers this afternoon issued the declaration that, unless by a near-miracle differences are settled in the meantime, a quarter of a million Chicago workmen will be thrown into idleness.

After today lumber dealers and manufacturers of building material will accept no more contracts.

The shutting down of the scores of plants was decided on today to smash the strike the carpenters declared on May 1 for higher wages. At that time 14,000 men quit work, thereby throwing out of jobs a total of over 100,000 men in allied trades.

Two thirds of the carpenter contractors of the city have signed agreements granting the carpenters' demands. The other third, members of the employers' association, refused and drew upon the power of producers of material and allied interests to force the workers to terms.

Estimates today placed the loss to the workers alone in wages would be at the rate of at least $600,000 a day and a still larger amount of loss to the employers.

It was figured that the shutdown would be felt in full force by the end of this week. Union leaders declared today they intend putting the facts before the federal authorities, who will be asked to determine whether the employers can be proceeded against for alleged criminal conspiracy in restraint of trade.

SIX DEAD FROM SUNDAY'S STORMS

Terrific Storm Sweeps the Northwest, Fatalities Resulting in North Dakota and Alberta

ST. PAUL, June 28.—Six are dead as a result of Sunday's and Saturday's storms through the northwest, according to reports being completed here today. In North Dakota Thomas Lenihan and his daughter, Nora, aged thirteen, and Carl Giese were killed by lightning. The Farmers' Co-operative elevator at Leeds, N. D., was destroyed by fire resulting from lightning.

With the death of Olaf Olson and his daughter early today the fatalities in the storm at Grass Lake, Alta., in which Red Cliff, Alta., was destroyed, were brought up to three. Mrs. Olson was instantly killed.

GERARD TO RECEIVE GERMAN REPLY TO SECOND NOTE SOON

FAVORABLE REPLY ASSURED

Lansing Receives Report of Progress on the Note from Ambassador
Gerard

(By Carl W. Ackerman, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

BERLIN, via The Hague, June 28.—The German reply to the second American note regarding the Lusitania will be handed to Ambassador Gerard on July 5 or 6. Because of the Fourth of July celebrations in the United States the foreign office deems it inadvisable to send Germany's answer before that date.

The tentative draft outlined by the United Press several days ago, has not yet been approved by Grand Admiral von Tirpitz, but the reply, I was assured by a high official here today, will take a form "to which no one in America can make objection." It is understood that Germany will make an important suggestion in her answer—a suggestion of such a nature that if President Wilson accepts it, the German-American controversy will be at an end.

It is considered probable here that this suggestion is the proposal that submarines will not attack unarmed passenger ships, carrying non-contraband, provided they bear certain distinguishing marks.

Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, who is now at the Galician army headquarters, is not expected to return to Berlin before the German reply is sent.

Dr. Bernhard Dernburg reached Berlin last night and was in conference with officials here today.

Lansing Gets Progress Report

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Secretary Lansing today received from Ambassador Gerard a report on progress in the preparation of Germany's reply to the American note. All he would make public was that Gerard said it was "along favorable lines."

AUSTRO-GERMANS TAKE HALICZ AND CROSS DNEISTER

What Is Thought to Be the Most Important Victory
Since Fall of Lemberg

BERLIN, via Wireless to London, June 28.—Austro-German troops have stormed and captured Halicz north of Stanislaw and have crossed the Dneister river.

Heavy howitzers wrecked the Russian position at the Halicz bridge head and forced the enemy to retire after a battle that has lasted nearly a fortnight.

Capture of Halicz and the railway crossing the river north of Stanislaw is perhaps the most important Austro-German victory since the winning of Lemberg.

The war office statement this afternoon indicates that the Russians, except at isolated points, have been entirely swept from the south bank of the Dneister and are rapidly being thrown out of southeast Galicia.

TURKISH MINISTER WANTS PASSPORTS

Sultan's Ambassador to Italy Calls for Papers
Saturday; Move Does Not Mean War

ROME, June 28.—The Turkish ambassador to Italy, Mehmed Naby Bey visited the foreign office late Saturday and demanded his passports.

Immediately after Italy's declaration of war against Austria, it was reported that the Italian ambassador had left Constantinople, but these reports were never officially confirmed. The Turkish ambassador at Rome, however, continued his visits to the Italian foreign office and there was no indication that Turkey would sever diplomatic relations. It is possible that Naby Bey's departure was prompted by Italian newspaper statements that Italy would soon participate in the campaign against the Dardanelles, and by reports that units of the Italian fleet already were en route to join Admiral De Robeck's Anglo-French fleet.

There has been no declaration of war between Turkey and Italy. A breaking off of diplomatic relations leaves the two countries in the same situation as Germany and Italy. Both Germany and Italy have recalled their ambassadors but neither has formally declared war.

EL PASO, Texas, June 28.—The incipient "third revolution" in Mexico which was to be launched today, under the leadership of Gen. Victoriano Huerta, was delayed and may possibly be crushed by the intervention of the United States government on Sunday causing the virtual arrest of Huerta when he arrived here to meet his followers.

Hundreds of Mexican refugees and sympathizers cheered the former dictator when he reached El Paso Sunday night. Their eager expectancy, however, soon changed to gloom when it was learned that Huerta had been taken to Fort Bliss as a prisoner of the United States government, though no formal accusation has as yet been lodged by the department of justice, which is investigating his alleged breach of neutrality in trying to launch an armed expedition from American soil against Mexico.

Cavalry Meets Him

Huerta was accompanied by several well-known Mexicans. Upon his arrival federal officials, who, accompanied by United States cavalrymen, had met the party at Newman, N. M., escorted Gen. Huerta to the federal building for a conference. Later the general and his party were taken to Fort Bliss. Detained with him is Gen. Pascual Orozco, who with Major Luis Fuentes, a son-in-law of Huerta, had gone to Newman, N. M., by automobile to meet Gen. Huerta. Fuentes, together with Gen. Huerta's son and A. K. Ratner, confidential financial associate and interpreter, who were traveling with the general, were not detained.

Demonstration Ends Abruptly

A public demonstration in Juarez about the hour Huerta's train was due to reach the city ended as suddenly as it began. There were hurried conferences among Mexican leaders on both side of the Rio Grande. Many admitted Huerta's presence was of the utmost importance, but none would comment.

Huerta Is Jolly

Early today, the time set for Victoriano Huerta to lead an invasion into Mexico by a new revolutionary party, he was at the home of his daughter here laughingly refusing to be bitter over his arrest by United States troops yesterday and later released under $15,000 bond for hearing next Thursday.

Answering the charges of conspiring to incite a revolution against a friendly country, the former dictator of Mexico persisted in the charge he was on a peaceful visit and ultimately bound for the San Francisco exposition.

The fate of the projected new revolution, undoubtedly organized by Huerta's friends, seemingly rested today in the hands of the United States District Attorney Camp working in conjunction with the regular troops at Fort Bliss and along the border. Camp ordered Huerta's arrest and release together with General Pascual Orozco, Huerta's chief aid, who furnished $7,500 bond for appearance also Thursday.

Munitions Guarded

Regular troops stood guard over a considerable quantity of machine guns and ammunition in a local warehouse owned by one of the Huerta faction. Secret service agents from the department of justice were on the track of Huerta, Orozco, and other adherents of the wily Indian who denies he wishes to be revenged on Villa and Carranza for over throwing his dictatorship.

The Villista garrison at Juarez reported to have been bribed by the Huertistas to mutiny, showed the greatest uneasiness over developments. The guard on the United States side of the border was alert last night and early today it was reported the number of troops would be doubled immediately to cope with the situation.

Energetic Prosecution Planned

WASHINGTON, June 28.—The justice department plans energetic prosecution of all persons concerned in the new Mexican conspiracy. The evidence against Generals Huerta, Orozco and all others accused of complicity in planning fresh Mexican revolt to be directed from this side of the border, was laid before a Texas federal grand jury at once.

Secret service agents attached to the department of justice have been Father Hackner received his elementary education at the St. Joseph's parochial school in this city. Later he attended a college at Prairie du Chien, going from there to the University of Runsbuck, Austria, where he studied for three years. He returned to America just before the hostilities in Europe commenced. He was in mid-ocean when war was declared. The last year of his preparation for the priesthood was spent at St. John's University, Collegeville, Minn.

VEHEMENT PROTEST AGAINST BRITISH METHODS SHAPING

Cotton Growers Band to Ask Special Session and Munitions Embargo Unless Methods Change

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Anglo-American complications showed the German-American situation into the background today.

The most vehement American protest since war began was taking shape against British interference with American trade at sea. Back of the movement were cotton growers, with a new crop almost on their hands, the American Association of Importers and the meat packers, united.

These forces were organizing to demand a special session of congress and a munitions embargo unless British blockade methods were changed.

It was learned Germany had consulted Austria relative to the former's reply to the latest American note. In conference at Vienna were the German emperor, his chancellor, Dr. Bethmann-Hollweg and Foreign Ministers von Jagow and Dajce of Germany and Austria respectively.

COPSEY CONTINUES WINNING STREAK AGAINST HOUSTON

Athletes Let Houston Down with One Hit in Fay's Forty-fifth Scoreless Inning

Fay Copsey, stellar twirler of the W. B. U. Athletes, pitched his forty-fifth consecutive scoreless inning Sunday afternoon at League park when he let the much-touted Houston aggregation down with one scratch hit, but for a bit of slow fielding on an infield drive by Captain Peterson of the visitors in the fourth inning, Copsey would now be a full-fledged pitcher of the no-hit, no-run class.

The visitors left the diamond in the second inning on an unfavorable decision at third base. Rogstad was called safe in sliding back to third. The Minnesotans objected so strongly that only the withdrawal of Rogstad from the sack would induce them to continue the game.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD BY HAL SHERIDAN (Written for the United Press.)

About 22,000 Chicagoans will say today that Eddie Collins is worth every nickel of $50,000. Eddie tripled with the bases full, thereby giving the Sox a one run victory over the Browns.

Incidentally, those same Sox are getting away out in front. They have a 70 point lead today, and somebody better do some starting if they hope to catch them. Mr. Carrigan and Mr. Jennings, notice.

The Clevelanders, as usual, got walked over; this time by Detroit. Mr. Cobb also as usual scored three runs, got a triple and a single, and stole two bases. He spent the rest of the afternoon pleasantly in center field.

"What's that new structure you have put up on the hill there?" asked a puzzled visitor of a farmer.

"Well," replied the farmer, "if I find a tenant for it it's a bungalow; if I don't, it's a barn."

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist or take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again. Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

BIG DAY OPENS IN COLLEGIATE ROWING

Columbia and Cornell Are Favorites in Classic Crew Regatta on the Hudson

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 28.—"Der Tag" in collegiate rowing circles dawned fair and cool. Early indications pointed to an excellent day for the historic regatta. There was, however, prospect of a freshening breeze, which was not greeted effusively by coaches and men.

Columbia and Cornell, it appeared, would go to the starting line the favorites. Syracuse took a slight drop over Sunday, owing to the loss of Minard, the regular No. 2 man, and the illness of Caman, the husky stroke, who may be out of the race. Pennsylvania, with her English stroke, has found many supporters since Yale's victory over Harvard last week with the same stroke. Eastern water men and "experts" generally regarded Leland Stanford as "dark horse" with a possibility of springing a surprise.

Events: Junior varsity eights, two miles, 4:15 p. m., Columbia, Pennsylvania and Cornell contesting. Freshman eights, two miles, 5 p. m., Syracuse, Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania contesting. Varsity eights, four miles, 6:15 p. m., Columbia, Cornell, Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Leland Stanford contesting.

EIGHTH STRAIGHT WON BY NELSONS

North Side Tossers Take Caledonia Commercials Into Camp by 11 to 4 Score

Old time beatings were avenged by the Nelsons yesterday when they romped away from the Caledonia Commercials by the score of 11 to 4, the eighth straight win for them and, incidentally, the first defeat of the year for Caledonia.

Aiken, the veteran of many a slab duel in these parts and many times the conqueror of La Crosse teams, did the slab work for the Commercials. He worked well, but shaky support and the inability of his men to hit behind him lost him the game. He struck out four men, and Sickles, new pitcher of the Nelsons, whiffed eleven.

Beranek, Kabat and Meinert were the hitting stars of the day. Cully annexed a home run and a triple in five times at bat and Kabat came across with two triples and a single in five times up. Al Meinert contributed two doubles and a single in five times to the plate.

THE SCORE:

Nelsons . . . 011014220—11 13 2
Caledonia . . . 012000001—4 7 3
Batteries: Sickles and Childers; Aiken and Blaxrud.

STRIKES THE FOUNDATION

With bills pending or passed one of the most significant features of which is that, in the aggregate, they will give the governor the appointment or approval of some twelve hundred state officials, including university employees, the people of Wisconsin are drifting along without any adequate impression of what the various bills mean, or what the program means.

Many of the bills are bad, and all contribute to a general plan calculated to swing the pendulum of events back toward the "good old times." For instance, in many of its features as well as in its underlying purpose the law to establish a board of welfare is illogical, loose and subversive of the public right to rule. But there is a measure of far more sinister significance, for this law deals only with things that touch the purse, that affect civil rights and the general prosperity. Losses from it may never be recouped, but they can be measured in terms of gold and silver.

Not so the central board of education bill. That law would make possible the betrayal of the people through the creation of sentiment based upon untruths. It may operate to poison the public mind through false prophets whose teachings reach back into the cradle.

Destroy the perspective of a people, train their mentalities to the acceptance of false doctrine, imbue them with faulty ideals, and the foundation is laid for perverted civilization that must be reflected in all their public and private activities.

Place the schools, from the rural district to the highest chair in the university, under control of a single group of men holding office by the whim of one dominant man whose authority goes even to the selection of instructors, and who shall say what the result will be?

Our university has become great, world-famed, largely by reason of the liberties of research and teaching it has enjoyed. Take from it that academic freedom, say to its professors that they shall teach so and so, but that they shall not teach this and that, and we shall train up as leaders of thought and action men led into narrow and one-sided views, schooled to the repression of those nobler instincts of justice and generosity which freedom of thought inspires. Nor let it be forgotten that under the same control which it is proposed to apply to the university would come the normal school and the "little red school house."

It was the university that made Wisconsin the first progressive state. The university did not do this by teaching progressivism as against conservatism. It taught the fundamental things of both, and the students took their choice. It was inevitable that young minds, unhampered by selfish considerations which come with the obligations and complications of later ensuing years, should heed the appeal of those nobler and broader lines of thought that make the progressive doctrine.

Here, then, in the central board of education bill, is laid the foundation for a program through which, give certain influences control, the inspiration of progressivism may be educated out of coming generations and for it may be substituted those "practical" things fundamental in a state in which money and business are the first considerations and individuals, at best, an afterthought.

A PEOPLE DRIFTING

The conservative administration at Madison is fortunate in that a great war is distracting the attention of the people from what is going forward, or planned, in the way of legislation. Citizens are looking to the east, absorbed by the greatest, the most terrible spectacle in the world's history. Demands of war news upon newspaper space have curtailed the publication of proposed laws and analysis and interpretation of them, so that even those who fix attention upon the subject have been unable to properly study pending or passed legislation.

As a result of these conditions there never has been a more general condition of uninformed about important legislative matters. For the most part people will secure their first practical knowledge of new laws by the experience of their operation. Among these measures are some that are very, very bad. They may "get by" now, but when the truth is known the reaction will be swift and sweeping. Let no man imagine he can push the state of Wisconsin back fifteen years and not be trampled into the dust when comes the inevitable rush to recover the lost ground.

Germania's Future

Robert Hamerling, a celebrated German poet, born March 24, 1830, at Kirchberg, in lower Austria, died January 25, 1888, shortly before passing away wrote the following prophecy in rhyme, much of which has already come to pass:

I cast my clairvoyant eyes in the stream of eternal light, And in my soul I clearly see, the vision of a future bright. Darkness through which you cannot see the pregnancy of coming death.

I see a noble goddess coming nearer as I hold my breath. It's the twentieth since Jesus, with clash of arms and sound of drum,

It's called the German century by generations yet to come. O German people the whole earth will bow before your thundering.

And vengeance on your enemies you will by your victory bring; England's never invaded soil will feel the tread of feet you prize, Everywhere and heavenward, the stream of your foe's blood will rise;

And false Russia's feet of clay, you will crush in many pieces, While the Baltic's rich provinces the German eagle then releases.

Austria long mourned dead before a score of years pass by. You will arise and proud and strong appear in all the nation's eye. And they will admit in trembling, bowing low before your fame, Call you ruler of the Orient second German empire name.

With the arisen Poland's crown to be placed on a Hapsburg's head. Under him new freedom gained Polish people will not dread. Beloved people, I hear the music—the cymbals and trumpets sound;

To celebrate the victories let all the jubilee resound. Glory in the heroes' era, this is your fate beyond your youth, Do not fear the foes around you, I have told the living truth. —Translated by Robert Schilling.

George Bernard Shaw was invited by a friend one night to hear a string quartet from Italy. Expecting a treat, he accepted the invitation. Throughout the program he sat with a stony look on his face.

The friend, to draw a little praise from him, said: "Mr. Shaw, those men have been playing together for twelve years."

"Twelve years?" said the other, in an incredulous voice. "Surely we've been here longer than that."

William, like many another man before him, had joined the army by way of showing his devotion to his Blood Troubles Can Not Remain If Properly Treated.

There is in S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, a property that absolutely compels harmful influences to disintegrate and lose their identity. No matter what they are called nor how destructive they are there is in S. S. S. a powerful, searching counter influence to annihilate the most eruptive germ, causes the mucous linings to convert it into an inert substance that is quickly thrown out of the blood and out of the body by the skin, lungs, kidneys, bowels, and destroyed in the liver.

There is not a single advance in medicine today that in any sense is an improvement over S. S. S. Surgery is a wonderful, masterful science, but when it comes to purifying the blood S. S. S. stands alone. Thousands of doctors have prescribed it. Their patients do not always know it is S. S. S., because they leave the treatment to the doctor implicitly. But fair-minded doctors long ago realized that in the vegetable nature of S. S. S. were certain ingredients that to the blood in sickness were just as essential as the flesh-building elements of the grains, meats, fats and sugars of our daily food. The average doctor is humane and of trained intelligence. He has seen the recoveries from worst cases of blood trouble by the use of S. S. S. Get a bottle of S. S. S. today of any druggist. Accept no substitute. And if you wish proper advice on any form of blood trouble, write to the Medical Adviser, The Swift Specific Co., 102 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is worth while doing so.

Suffered Everything Until Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Florence, So. Dakota.—"I used to be very sick every month with bearing down pains and backache, and had headache a good deal of the time and very little appetite. The pains were so bad that I used to sit right down on the floor and cry, because it hurt me so and I could not do any work at those times. An old woman advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I got a bottle. I felt better the next month so I took three more bottles of it and got well so I could work all the time. I hope every woman who suffers like I did will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. P. W. LANSING, Box 8, Allyn, Wash.

Why will women continue to suffer day in and day out or drag out a sickly, half-hearted existence, missing three-fourths of the joy of living, when they can find health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?

When "lights out" sounded he insisted on his comrades leaving the light burning.

"Now, then, put that light out!" shouted an officer on inspection.

"H'm," retorted Willful William. "And pray who are you?"

"I'm the officer of the day."

"Then what the dickens are you prying about in the night time for?" asked William.

Mrs. Beaton was walking through the park recently when two ragged, dirty little boys, who were playing near by, stopped her.

"What will he do—crow?" queried Mrs. Beaton.

And Mr. Trimmer strode into the circle of light, a fine upstanding figure of a man, to pass triumphantly out of sight among the palms. Dazed, Dick Minot stared after him.

A voice spoke his name. He turned. The slim white presence again, holding toward him a slip of paper.

"The check, Mr. Minot. Thirty-five dollars. Is that correct?"

"Correct. It's splendid. Because I'm never going to cash it—I'm going to keep it."

"Really, Mr. Minot, I must say good—"

He came closer. Thacker and Jephson faded. New York was far away. He was young, and the moon was shining—

"—going to keep it—always. The first letter you ever wrote me—"

"And the last, Mr. Minot. Really—I must go. Good night."

He stood alone, with the absurd check in his trembling fingers. Slowly the memory of Trimmer came back. A bomb? What sort of a bomb?

Well, he had given his word. There was no way out—he must protect old Jephson's interests. But might he not wish the enemy—success? He started off in the direction the advertising wizard had gone.

"Trimmer, old boy," he muttered, "here's to your pitching arm!"

CHAPTER V.
Mr. Trimmer Throws His Bomb.

Miss Cynthia Meyrick was a good many girls in one. So many, indeed, that it might truthfully be added that while most people are never so much alone as when in a crowd, Miss Meyrick was never so much in a crowd as when alone. Most of these girls were admirable, a few were more mischievous than admirable, but rely upon it that every single one of them was nice.

It happened to be a very serious-minded girl that Miss Meyrick opened her eyes on Tuesday morning. She lay for a long time watching the Florida sunshine, spoken of so tenderly in the railroad's come-on books, as it danced across the foot of her bed. Today the Lieth was to steam into San Marco harbor! Today her bridegroom was to smile his slow British smile on her once more! She recalled these facts without the semblance of a thrill.

Where, she wondered, was the thrill? The frivolous girl who had met Lord Harrowby abroad, and dazzled by dreams of social triumphs to come had allowed her aunt to urge her into this betrothal, was not present at the moment. Had she been, she would have declared this Cynthia Meyrick a silly, and laughed her into gales again.

Into the room toddled the aunt who had stood so faithfully on the coaching line abroad. With heavy wit, she spoke of the coming of Lord Harrowby. Miss Cynthia did not smile. She turned grave eyes on her aunt.

"I'm wondering," she confessed. "Was it the thing to do, after all? Shall I be so very happy?"

"Nonsense. Ninety-nine out of a hundred engaged girls have doubts. It's natural." Aunt Mary sat down on the bed, which groaned in agony. "Of course you'll be happy. You'll take precedence over Marion Bishop—didn't we look that up? And after the airs she's put on when she's come back to Detroit—well, you ought to be the happiest of girls."

"I know—but—" Miss Meyrick continued to gaze solemnly at her aunt. She was accustomed to the apparition. To any one who knew Aunt Mary only in her public appearance, a view of her now would have been startling. Not to go too deeply into the matter, she had not yet been poured into the steel girders that determined her public form.

Her washed-out eyes were puffy, and her gray hair was not so luxuriant as it would be when she appeared in the hotel dining-room for lunch. There she sat, a fat little hump of a woman who had all her life chased will-o'-the-wisps.

"But what?" she demanded firmly.

"It seems as if all my fun were over. Didn't you feel that way when you became engaged?"

"Hardly. But then—I hadn't enjoyed everything money will buy, as you have. I've always said you had too much. There, dear—cheer up. You don't seem to realize. Why, I can remember when you were born—in the flat down on Second Street—and your father wearing his old overcoat another year to pay the doctor's bill. And now that little fluffy baby is to marry into the peerage! Bless you, how proud your mother would be had she lived—"

"Are you sure, Aunt Mary?"

"Positive." Aunt Mary's eyes filled, and with a show of real, if clumsy affection, she leaned over and kissed her niece. "Come, dear, get up. I've ordered breakfast in the rooms."

Miss Cynthia sat up. And as if banished by that act, the serious little mouse of a girl scampered into oblivion, and in her place appeared a gay young rogue who sees the future lying bright ahead.

"After all," she smiled, "I'm not married—yet." And humming brightly from a current musical comedy—"Not just yet—just yet—just yet—" she stretched forth one slim white arm to throw aside the coverlet. At which point it is best discreetly to withdraw.

Mr. Minot, after a lonesome if abundant breakfast, was at this moment strolling across the hotel courtyard toward yesterday morning's New York papers. As he walked, the pert promises of Mr. Trimmer filled his mind. What was the proposition Mr. Trimmer had in tow? How would it affect the approaching wedding? And what course of action should the representative of Jephson pursue when it was revealed? For in the sensible light of morning Dick Minot realized that while he remained in San Marco as the guardian of Jephson's interests, he must do his duty. Adorable Miss Meyrick might be, but any change of mind on her part must be over his dead body. A promise was a promise.

The TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

HER ONE TALENT

BY DOROTHY BLACKMORE

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

For the first time in her life Delia wished she had been trained in some kind of business. All the women in England seemed to be capable of doing some work in the great war crisis, and all the Americans living in London were doing their utmost to help, yet Delia Thorne could do nothing.

Even before the government war service had been started she had longed to offer her services in some capacity, for there was work in plenty for women who could fill the positions left vacant by those who had gone to the front. Every business house in the country was sadly depleted. Work of every description was waiting for those capable of using their intelligence.

To say that Delia Thorne scorned her own uselessness in the time of endeavor on the part of the women of her country was putting her case mildly.

"Twenty thousand women have registered themselves as capable of helping in some capacity or another, and I can't even use a typewriter intelligently or figure sufficiently well to sell ribbons behind a counter," Delia thrust this appalling fact before her own mental outlook a hundred times a day. She worked herself into a fever of resentment against the system of development, or lack of development, that surrounded the idle rich. For Delia was one of the idle rich.

A letter which reached the honorable secretary of the Women's Emergency Corps was the outcome of Delia's frantic desire to do something and to become a part of the great struggling nation.

The honorable secretary, Miss Diana Mershon, tossed the letter to her brother, who sat working laboriously over the day's correspondence. Had Jack Mershon possessed half of the robust supply of health with which his handsome sister was endowed, he would have been in the continental trenches with his comrades.

"There is a girl after your own heart, Jack," laughed Delia. Diana Mershon was an avowed suffragette, a successful organizer, and she could make a telling speech before a multitude of people, but knew she would be a failure as a home maker.

Jack smiled a trifle wistfully and picked up the dainty little letter.

"Hon. Secretary, Dear Madam," he read. "I am one of the old fashioned, ultra-feminine type of girls. Is there anything you could suggest my doing to help the government war service?"

I can do absolutely nothing except keep house, since I have been perfectly trained for that purpose. I came to London expecting to be married and all my training has been toward that end. My engagement, however, has been broken and now I am free to occupy my time in business, if there is any opening for one so stupidly brought up as I have been.

My position is such that domestic service is precluded. Is there a chance of any kind for me to do even a small portion of good in this striving world? Please do help me, if you can. I would be glad to keep house for some of you fortunate women who are out in the busy world; that I can do. Very sincerely, Delia Thorne."

Diana Mershon wondered, as her brother read this letter, if the thought it had inspired in her now mind would be suggested to him also. When he looked up she saw that it had.

"Bully idea!" he exclaimed, as if Diana had already voiced her decision. "We both need an intelligent person to take our household in charge, don't we, Di?"

She smiled a bit wistfully as she gazed at her brother.

"Poor old Jack, I know I have made rather a mess of homemaking. If Delia Thorne can make an orderly home for us she will be doing her part in the Woman's Emergency corps. I want a real home as much as you, but I don't seem to know just how to manage it."

"You can do everything else so well, Di," he said fondly. "Here you are about to help another poor soul who is floundering about in the world. By jove, you're a brick!"

Jack Mershon never quite knew whether it was admiration for his sister or relief in the prospect of having an old-fashioned woman in his household that drew forth his enthusiasm on this occasion.

He cared not a particle whether Delia Thorne's nose was aquiline or Grecian, or whether her hair was uncut gold or dusky black so long as she was possessed of no business acumen or ability for stump speaking. All he wanted was a woman who could attend to the household affairs as his mother had done, and make home a place he longed to get back to in the evening and hated to leave in the morning.

When Delia arrived at the headquarters of the corps in answer to Diana Mershon's letter, she felt strangely elated. She had hungered so long to be of some service to some one that she entered Miss Mershon's office with a smile on her lips and a song in her heart.

"I feel that you are doing this almost out of charity," Delia said to Miss Mershon, when arrangements for her to take charge of the big, untidy-kept home had been made.

"No, I have not," Diana assured her frankly. "My brother—" she glanced over at Jack, who was trying his best not to stare at the new recruit, "requires a real home. He had a bad fall from his horse some time ago and it has left him not perfectly strong. We business women seem unable to be in two places at once, and I must attend to the work here—it is my duty, you know, since I am capable of helping the country. If you can transform the four walls of this house into a real home for my brother and me I believe you will be doing as great good for the country as any business woman could do."

"I feel sure I can do that," Delia agreed shyly, but with a look of confidence in her earnest eyes.

A month later Jack and Diana Mershon found themselves lingering over breakfast and leaving the headquarters of the war services corps a half hour earlier than had been their wont. Home was no longer a misnomer as applied to their reconstructed household. Without an apparent hitch in the domestic machinery, Jack and Diana shifted the heavy yoke of responsibility and went about their daily tasks free and reinvigorated. The servants, too, seemed willing to do their share and to become a living part of the household instead of automatons.

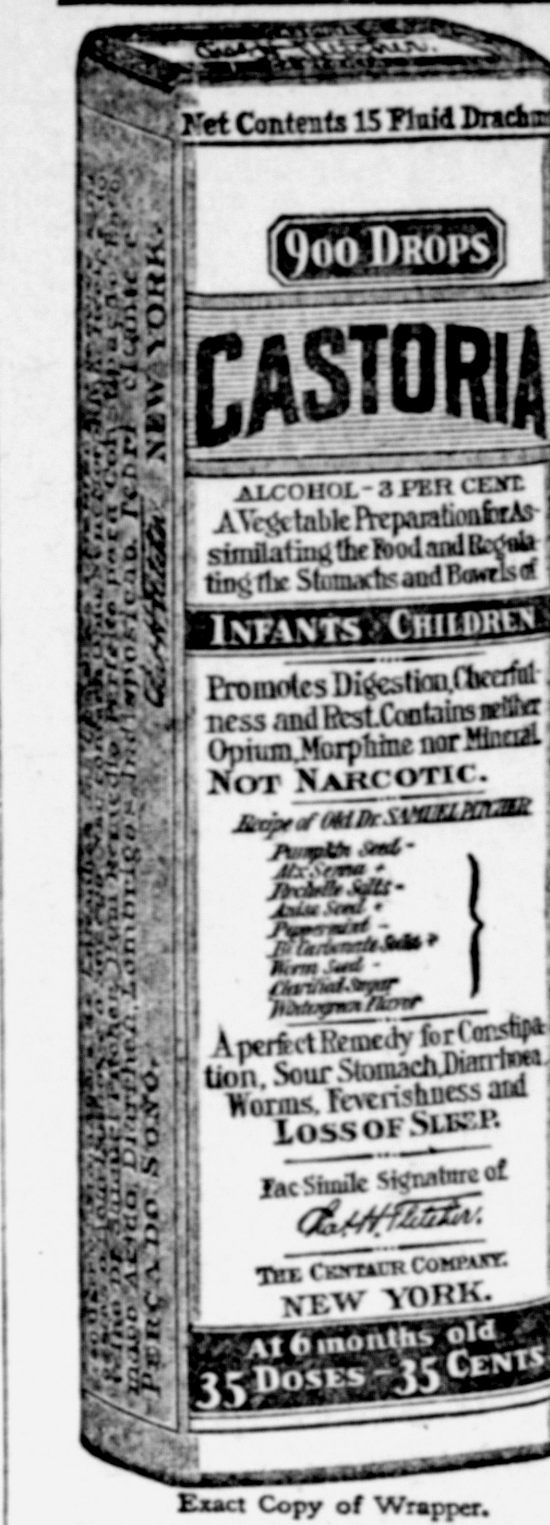

Gradually the four walls of the Mershon house became home indeed, and Delia was directly responsible for the metamorphosis. She had been given the opportunity to exercise her one talent and she had succeeded even beyond her expectation.

She was happy, too, and more than consoled for all that had happened. Even with George Graven, she told herself, she could never have been so happy as she was now with Diana Mershon and her brother Jack.

"How shall we ever do without her?" Diana said to Jack one day while they were still at the office. "What will become of us when she leaves us?"

There was a look of positive terror in her eyes and her voice was decidedly unsteady.

Jack smiled placidly. "Dear old Di," he said tenderly, "she will never leave us. I have already provided against such a frightful possibility. She has promised to marry me."

Daddy's Bedtime

The Little Girl Who Saved The General.

"LITTLE girls are often just as brave as little boys," declared daddy, "if not braver, and they show real resource in danger. I will tell you a little story which will illustrate this."

"It is a story of the Revolution, when the thirteen colonies of America gained their independence and became the United States."

"A great deal of the fighting was done in the state of Pennsylvania. Some of the people were in favor of England and helped her troops, but a great many more were on the side of the colonists. There were many farms throughout that section, and the farmers and their sons took up arms for the colonists in many cases, and this is where the little girl of my story comes in."

"This little girl was about twelve years old, and she was the daughter of a farmer who favored Washington and his brave men. But he was lame and couldn't be a soldier, so he helped the cause in other ways. Colonial troops who passed by were welcome to the produce of his farm and might stable their horses in his barns. His family made clothing for the soldiers too."

"One day the farmer and his wife were called away, and they left the little girl at home spinning. It was a very interesting sight to see the little maid, with her prim little cap and her long flowing brown skirt and tiny apron, sitting there turning the big wheel and dreaming dreams."

"Suddenly she heard a step and looked up to see a man in a Continental uniform and a sword at his side, right there in the quaint old kitchen, with its sanded floor and the big clock tick-tocking on the wall, looking at her."

"'Little maid,' he said hurriedly, 'will you hide me somewhere? British troops are after me. They shot my horse from under me and will be here shortly. If you are a friend of the colonists you will aid me.'"

"Then the little maid had a bright idea. Right under her feet was a trapdoor leading to a walled off part of the cellar that was seldom used. 'Right down here,' she said, and, rising, she tugged at the iron ring and lifted the trapdoor, and down into the cellar went the soldier, sword and all."

"In a few moments along came the British soldiers, and they looked all over that house, while the little girl sat and spun, with her skirt over the closed trapdoor. Then the British went away, and the little maid opened the trapdoor and let the soldier out and took him to the barn, where he got one of her father's horses and safely escaped."

"Later he sent that little maid a letter and a present. Then she found she had saved a great American general from capture."

TRUE NEUTRALITY WANTED SAYS STERN

Delegates to German-American Alliance Gather for Convention in Madison

MADISON, Wis., June 28.—More than 200 delegates to the convention of the German-American alliance were in this city Saturday. They were in session Saturday and Sunday.

In his opening address to the convention President Leo Stern of Milwaukee said in reference to the stand of the alliance on the European situation that Germany would win the great struggle she is in "if there is any justice on earth."

"German-Americans have been attacked because they are demanding true neutrality from our government and opposing the position of that part of the English press taking sides with the allies," said Mr. Stern.

"We protest against any one man, no matter how high he may stand in the government, telling us what we should consider our duty and how we should behave in critical times. Neither threats or smooth talk can affect our actions for we German-Americans are dictated by our conscience. We demand the right to criticize the government, or to approve of its actions, and in the future, as in the past, we will always be good citizens."

NEW YORK, June 28.—There is no reason to believe that the fighting now proceeding between Lemberg and the Russian frontier marks a sensational recovery by the retreating Slavs. It is inevitable that after having put forth the tremendous effort which the capture of Lemberg entailed there must follow a period of recuperation and reformation for the German troops. This is the more probable reason why the Russians are permitted to cling to Galician territory east and southeast of Lemberg.

Not the recovery of their lost military spirit, nor yet the arrival of needed ammunition can be assumed to account for the spirited rear guard actions which the Slavs are now putting forth, with some indication of success. Supplies, in fact, must be running very low for those Slavs who are operating along the Dniester river, southeast of Lemberg.

Most of the railways by which they formerly maintained their communications are now in Austro-German possession. The only way to ensure the remaining lines from being cut is to protect them all the distance to the Russian frontier thus seriously reducing the Russian battle line strength. Otherwise, raiding parties from the German territory center would do serious and perhaps vital damage.

As nearly as can be judged from the meager official reports, the Austro-Germans have cleared the enemy out of the country as far as thirty miles east of Galicia. This represents about one-fourth of the Galician territory which remained to be conquered after the fall of Lemberg. The Russian are falling back in three directions beyond the thirty mile limit. They are moving northeast along the main Lemberg railway toward Brody; they are moving southeast toward Tarnopol and still further to the south they are following the course of the Dniester river.

Brody and Tarnopol are the only Galician cities of importance remaining in Russian possession.

Their capture would mark the beginning of the final phase leading to Austria's full recovery of her lost province. The road to Brody was that along which the Slav treasures and the goods of military value were removed from Lemberg to Russia on the approach of Field Marshal von Mackensen. This is the principal Russian line of communication for the Galician armies, and is undoubtedly very heavily guarded.

The Germans seem to be neglecting Brody for the moment. Russian reports indicate that a German force is moving on Tarnopol, forty miles southeast of Brody, but has been checked along a branch railway from Lemberg which joins the Tarnopol main line. If Tarnopol falls, the

CROWN SCORES IN 'BRIDE'S BATH' CASE

Evidence Supports Theory That Smith Drowned His Wives by Holding Their Heads Under Water

BY WILBUR S. FORREST

LONDON, June 28.—The crown scored today in the "Bride's Bath" murder trial, by offering a "surprise" witness against George Joseph Smith, charged with the murder of three of his six wives who were found dead in their bathtubs.

William Haines of Blackpool swore that after the nude body of Alice Burnham Smith was removed from the tub he found a quantity of woman's hair there. His testimony was presented to support the crown's theory that Smith drowned his three wives by holding their heads under water.

The inspector's testimony closed the Alice Burnham case, and the crown began presenting testimony in the case of Margaret Elizabeth Loft, the prisoner's sixth wife, who was found dead in a bathtub while on her honeymoon at High Gate, on December 17, 1914, after willing the prisoner $3,500.

Under the name of John Lloyd Smith, according to Scotland Yard detectives who were the first witnesses, married the Loft woman exactly three months after he had taken a fifth wife.

Other witnesses offered by the crown testified that the prisoner's sixth wife visited a lawyer and made her will on the morning of December 18, the day after the wedding, leaving $3,500 to Smith. The "honeymooners" took a walk at noon. Early in the afternoon, witnesses testified Smith ran down stairs shouting: "My God! She's dead—in the tub."

Their testimony corroborated that of others who told of mysterious deaths of other wives.

Austro-Germans with success in cutting off the Russians along the Dniester and from the Slavs using Brody as a military base.

This means that a large part of the Russians who have retreated from Lemberg probably will be compelled to fall back into Bessarabia or else abandon that province and permit the Austro-Germans to occupy it unopposed. Such seems to be the new German halting. The Russian success in halting it can for the present be described only as a temporary respite. If, with far weaker defensive positions to assist them than they had along the San and before Lemberg, the Russians now check the Austro-Germans permanently within the Galician boundary, that feat will rank second only to the defense of Warsaw. Every probability is against its accomplishment.

Senator J. H. Bennett of Viroqua and Bentley of Baraboo Mentioned for Crownhart Place

MADISON, Wis., June 28.—(Special.)—The appointment of M. J. Cleary of Blanchardville as state insurance commissioner for a four-year term now leave but one more appointment of a state commissioner to Governor Philipp during the session of this legislature. The term of Charles H. Crownhart of Superior as member of the state industrial commission expires next Thursday. It is understood that Frank R. Bentley of Baraboo is a more or less active candidate for the place. Senator J. H. Bennett of Viroqua has also been mentioned. Notwithstanding the fact that Messrs. Bentley and Bennett are closer to the governor politically than Crownhart, and due in part, perhaps, to the fact that Crownhart has kept hands off of the political fight, it is reported that the executive has felt disposed to reappoint Crownhart solely on the ground of his efficiency. It is known that the governor has been strongly urged by both manufacturers and workers throughout the state to retain the present chairman of the commission. The term will be six years. The salary is $5,000 per year.

Buy It At Home

Mr. D. W. MacWillie, president of the Wisconsin Pearl Button Company, who asked by a representative of THE TRIBUNE to express his views on the "Buy It At Home" movement, said in part:

"The question of buying La Crosse made goods or buying at home is purely an economical problem, void of any discussion. The foundation of this great United States is based on community interests. The individual, the home, the village, the city, the county, the state and the nation are bound together for the preservation and up-building of our homes and families. We live to defend and help each other in our own family—we broaden out and take in our neighbors, as the frontier men did in 1848. Strangers bound together for self-protection against the wild beast and the Indian. You protect my home and I will protect yours."

"As our western plains became populated, trading and manufacturing centers developed under the law of community interests. This law still exists and must be continued."

"You have children who are the pride of your life. You have brought them up under your careful guidance to manhood and womanhood, and what mother or father really wants to see their sons and daughters go out into the world providing they can do as well at home. Now the buying at home of La Crosse made goods—the boosting and supporting the boost by actually buying the goods—means a profit to you by building up or encouraging the merchant and manufacturer to build up his business in La Crosse so as to give more employment and better employment for your sons and daughters. Our manufacturing and commercial interests can only grow to the extent of the ability of the merchant and manufacturer to secure assistance of the highest type to carry out their ideas of advancement."

WOULD ENGAGE WRIGHT

LONDON, June 28.—The Daily Mail today suggested editorially that the British government attempt to secure the services of Orville Wright, American aeroplane inventor, to direct the great air fleet Great Britain is now mobilizing. "We do not know whether he would be willing to come to England," said the Mail, "but we know he is the world's best authority on aeroplanes and a singularly disinterested and uncommercial inventor."

WRIGHT SILENT

DAYTON, Ohio, June 28.—Orville Wright, noted aeroplane inventor, today refused to discuss the London Mail's suggestion that England offer Wright direction of England's proposed great fleet of war aeroplanes. Wright's friends say today they feel certain he would not accept such a post. Wright deeply regrets the use of flying machines in the European war, they said.

CONEY ISLAND DESERTED

NEW YORK, June 28.—Coney Island bathing beach has lost its charm. The sandy stretch was almost deserted yesterday while the crowds swarmed around the "Hopperie" to see fashionable New York suffragists hop with skirts a-flying, over the states that won't let 'em vote. The "Hopperie" was established by the suffrage association for advertising and mercenary purposes.

MEAN MAN STEALS FINERY

CHICAGO, June 28.—Miss Lamar Sheridan, daughter of the Rev. Wilbur F. Sheridan, general secretary of the Epworth league of the Methodist Episcopal church, won't go direct to the fair when she reaches San Francisco, some time Friday. Instead, she'll hike for "Frisco" shopping district to replace her finery that some mean man swiped in the station just before her train pulled out.

DEPOSED DICTATOR NABBED WHEN ABOUT TO ENTER MEXICO

watching the latest plot's developments ever since the first move was made in New York city. Officials familiar with the situation say the prosecution for neutrality violation will be on the biggest scale in American history.

Although Huerta and Orozco are out on bail it was said here today that they were watched closely to prevent jumping of the bond in an attempt to execute the original plans. President Wilson at Cornish, is being kept in close touch with developments, which are now in Attorney General Gregory's hands.

Reports from Admiral Howard, on the Mexican west coast, said the Sonora situation is much improved. The state department was still in the dark concerning the outcome of fighting between Generals Gonzales and Zapata about Mexico City.

Having turned General Huerta over to the federal civil authorities war department officials said the Mexican border neutrality situation was out of their hands; they were asked to furnish an escort and did it.

There was no prospect that the border military force would be strengthened, it was added. General Funston, however, it was explained, had authority to handle his troops as he saw fit and might concentrate them at strategic points without consulting the department.

The arrests of Generals Huerta and Orozco here yesterday were only the beginning of a nation-wide prosecution of leading Mexican exiles and some Americans of more or less prominence who became interested in the latest attempt to establish a government south of the Rio Grande by bloodshed.

Clifford Beckham, a young lawyer of Fort Worth, Texas, was the special agent of the department of justice who arrested the former president of Mexico and his chief aide in the projected revolution.

Beckham stated today to the United Press that more arrests would undoubtedly be made, probably today. The Americans are citizens of Texas he said. He refused to confirm reports that prominent New York bankers, alleged backers of the Huerta party, would also be arrested.

The escape of Gen. Jose Inez Salazar from the Albuquerque, N. M., jail Nov. 20, 1914, was the first step in the Huerta conspiracy, according to Beckham. Salazar was detained there by the government after he led his troops across the border to escape capture following his defeat at Ojinaga. Beckham investigated Salazar's escape and what he learned led him on to the conspiracy that culminated in yesterday's arrest.

The special agent of the department of justice ridiculed Huerta's naive mask of innocence. It was stated on the highest authority that the department of justice is collecting evidence about the conspirators in at least a dozen cities including New York, Washington, San Antonio, Galveston and New Orleans.

At Thursday's hearing before U. S. Commissioner George Oliver, Huerta and Orozco will be represented by the El Paso firm of Lea, McGrady & Thomason, among the leading lawyers in this section of the country. Lea is mayor of El Paso.

Villa Ready If Gen. Victoriano Huerta invades Mexico he will meet his old enemy, Gen. Pancho Villa.

The former bandit has 3,000 picked troops eighty miles south of Juarez and is awaiting Huerta's next move.

The Washington government is represented locally by Zack Cobb, collector of customs, who with United States District Attorney Camp of San Antonio obtained a cavalry escort from Fort Bliss and intercepted the former dictator and Gen. Pascual Orozco, Huerta's chief aid, at Newman, N. M., just north of El Paso.

Cobb stated today that the border patrol had not been increased and that the report of martial law being declared in Juarez, just across the border, was groundless.

The many former federalist officials of Huerta's regime known to be in El Paso kept aloof from their old leader today.

The loyalty of the Villista garrison at Juarez having been openly doubted by the Huerta party, Villa gathered 3,000 of his personal guards and sent them to within striking distance of the border. This became known today when Villistas in El Paso declared Huerta would be opposed to the last man Villa could muster.

CARRANZA FORCES BEATEN BY ZAPATA BEFORE CAPITAL

Consul Silliman Wires Confirmation of Beating Given General Gonzales

WASHINGTON, June 28.—General Carranza's forces in Mexico City have defeated the Carranzistas under General Gonzales, according to state department advices this afternoon.

A disquieting report from Coahuila state, Mexico, was that the governor and General Pleria, commander at Saltillo, had refused to admit Red Cross supplies, saying they would feed their own people.

The defeat was confirmed by the courier who left the capital June 23 and has just reached Vera Cruz, according to a state department dispatch received this afternoon from Consul Silliman in the latter place.

The courier reported that the Zapatistas in Mexico City numbered 25,000. He said they had taken over the telegraph to Vera Cruz and that all stores and banks in Mexico City were closed.

The situation was declared to be serious, though the surmise was ventured that the reinforcements which Gen. Carranza was rushing to Gen. Gonzales aid might so far outnumber the Zapatistas as to force them to evacuate the capital.

What caused the gravest apprehension was that foreigners in Mexico City would suffer in the fighting, compelling American intervention. The food shortage was said to be grave beyond exaggeration.

NEWSPAPER MAN PREPARES TO WED GENEVIEVE CLARK

ST. LOUIS, June 28.—Busy on the "biggest assignment" of his life, James McIlhenny Thomson, New Orleans newspaper editor and publisher, who is to marry Miss Genevieve Clark, daughter of Champ Clark, declined to be interviewed on his stop in St. Louis today. He was preparing to depart for Bowling Green, Mo., where the wedding will take place June 30 at "Honey Shuck" the Clark home.

"It's a man's job to get ready," said Thomson, tossing a collar into a grip. Thomson said he and his bride-to-be would spend their honeymoon at a northern resort and then return to New Orleans, "where his mealticket is."

MAYOR INVITED TO ADDRESS OLD DAKOTA SETTLERS

Mayor A. A. Bentley has received an invitation to speak at the Old Settlers' day celebration in Bentley, N. D., his former residence. The celebration will be held July 15. The mayor has not decided whether to accept the invitation.

Old Settlers' day is an institution on the "Missouri slope" in which seven or eight counties take part. It is held in a grove on the Cannonball river, near Bentley, in Hettinger county.

DECLARES AGAINST CERTIFICATE ISSUE

CHICAGO, June 28.—Samuel Untermyer, money trust baiter, today ripped a few more strips from the hide of the "money group."

"Representing the Amster committee of minority stockholders of the Rock Island railroad, Untermyer appeared today before Federal Judge Carpenter to protest against the proposed issuance of $2,500,000 of the railroad's certificates to meet interest notes due in July."

"This money is not needed," declared Untermyer. "Investigation of the road's books will prove this. Receiver Mudge, brought up under the influence of the New York money group, from whom no one can get money without heavy toll, is still under the influence of this group."

Judge Carpenter continued the case to look into the books.

FORMER RESIDENT DIES IN MILL CITY

C. L. Lien of the C. L. Lien and Company drug store, was called to Minneapolis Saturday because of the death of his son-in-law, George Glazer. Mr. Glazer, before his removal to Minneapolis, lived on the North side, being employed as a round house foreman for the C. M. & St. P. railroad. He held the same position at Minneapolis.

GIRL CONFESSES CRIME

MINEOLA, N. Y., June 28.—"I am the woman in the case, and I will have to bear the odium," declared pretty Ruth Taylor-Conlin before she appeared in court today to face a charge of rifling summer cottages at fashionable Sea Cliffe, L. I., with Defald Clapham, her 19-year-old sweetheart.

dent Wilson did not specifically order the arrest of Gen. Victoriano Huerta yesterday. The ex-dictator was taken into custody, however, as the result of a standing order that the chief executive had issued some time ago.

That was as much as the president would comment on the Huerta case today.

Gunboat Ordered to Vera Cruz WASHINGTON, June 28.—The gunboat Marietta, enroute from Key West to Vera Cruz, was ordered today to put into Progresso, Carranzista officials having shown a disposition again to interfere with mail shipments to the United States.

CAPTAIN LARRY DUGAN AS DOVE OF DOMESTIC PEACE BRINGS HARMONY

Big Captain "Larry" Dugan, who speaks only English, and that with a trace of Hibernian accent, made peace in French this morning after one of the stormiest sessions central police station ever saw. As a result of Captain "Larry's" essay of the role of dove of domestic peace, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Maes left the station arm in arm, reconciled, leaving behind them one very badly wilted interpreter and a moist and perspiring policeman.

The police were called to the Maes home on the north side early today when the row woke the neighbors. The Maes family is Belgian, and speaks French in a shrill voice when excited, the police say. Unable to make out what the trouble was about, except that Mrs. Maes was determined to leave the house with her children, the police brought her to a downtown hotel. This morning they called in the husband, got an interpreter, and began mediation.

The mediation attracted much attention in the city hall. It took place in the chief of police office, but it reverberated through central station.

It was settled when the couple adopted the captain's suggestion that they move into a house apart from that occupied by Maes' sister, to whom Mrs. Maes had objection.

Maes is planning to return to Belgium shortly to bring back his mother, who is a homeless war refugee. When excited, the police say. THE MODERN GAS RANGE

A cooking appliance that uses gas is designed to avoid all kinds of waste. It does the best cooking and does it in half the usual time. You light your fire without kindling; your fuel is delivered in your stove and burns without ashes or soot. You can get a big dinner ready in less than an hour. You can shut off all heat the instant you are through cooking—no waste heat.

The use of your oven on the gas range will permit you to bake bread and apples and cook macaroni and cheese, onion, potatoes and a chicken all at once with one and the same fire.
